FDsys is an open access repository of U.S. federal government agency and legislative branch publications. According to a 2006 GPO presentation, FDsys "will be a world class system for managing official Government content. The system will verify and track versions, assure authenticity, preserve content, and provide permanent public access." The system was largely developed by Harris Corporation under a contract let by the GPO in 2006.

100 Years Later, a Genocide Haunts the Armenian Psyche

Turkish-Armenian women searched for the graves of relatives in the Armenian cemetery in Istanbul. The genocide was the greatest atrocity of the war. It also remains that conflict's most bitterly contested legacy, having been met by the Turkish authorities with 100 years of silence and denial. For survivors, Armenians and their descendants, the genocide became a central marker of their identity, the psychic wounds passed down through generations.
