Outreach Services

• Reference Consultation

• Cooperative Collection Development Programs
Reference Consultation

Identifying material of interest to researchers

Example: Prof. Sabine Wilke (University of Washington) whose research interest is German Colonialism
Reference Consultation

Identifying material for classroom use

Example: Historical Methods Class at Carnegie Mellon – English Language newspapers from Egypt and Lebanon
– Other English language materials
Reference Consultation

Identifying specific items needed, which can also lead to purchasing needed material via one of CRL’s purchasing programs
CRL’s three longstanding cooperative programs enable CRL libraries to offer a broad range of collection resources to patrons while conserving precious acquisition funds for local resources:

- Demand Purchase Program
- Purchase Proposal Program
- Shared Purchase Program

Each of the above programs enables CRL libraries to make new source materials available to researchers at their institutions while saving money in the costs of acquiring, cataloging, processing, and storing those materials.

In addition, to meet the changing needs of scholars CRL has initiated new resource-building programs:

- Electronic Resource Offers

CRL’s Member Liaison & Outreach Services Director works with librarians, faculty, and students from member libraries to identify and select materials for addition to CRL collections.
