Official Gazettes & Civil Society Documentation

A collection of official gazettes and other key historical government documentation from countries where the integrity of the public record is known to be at risk. CRL’s open web repository promotes transparency and accountability by providing a permanent public record of government documentation that defines the rights and obligations of citizens and records the activities of government. CRL is digitizing official gazettes from its extensive collection of print and microfilm, and will augment these materials by harvesting from the web more recent gazettes and related data published digitally.

Funding for digitization and hosting of gazettes from ten African and Persian Gulf countries was provided in part by the Carnegie Corporation of New York. More about this collection

Frequently asked questions about knowledge base collections in Collection Manager

Collections and data updates

Which collections are available and how many titles have OCLC numbers?

All collections currently available in the WorldCat knowledge base, the underlying database for Collection Manager, are listed in the spreadsheet found on the Release notes page. It is updated monthly to reflect changes to the available collections.

See the spreadsheet of Collections in the WorldCat knowledge base (.xlsx).

The spreadsheet includes the percentage of items in each collection that contain an OCLC number. Items with OCLC numbers can have holdings set in WorldCat and/or can have MARC records output. Note that if a title does not have an OCLC number when you activate the title, you will automatically receive a record if an OCLC number is added at a later time.

Cooperative Collection Building

Through CRL, knowledgeable individuals at college, university, and independent research libraries in the United States, Canada and Hong Kong work together to identify, preserve, and acquire collections that support advanced research and teaching. CRL promotes the efforts of these communities of interest by maintaining access to extensive shared collections. CRL's three longstanding cooperative collection building programs enable CRL libraries to expand the range of essential source materials available to researchers at their institutions while saving local acquisitions and storage costs.

Topic Guides

CRL offers topic guides listing a selection of key source materials that can support research in various areas. New citations are added from time to time; reformulated guides (marked below) also provide an overview of the current "landscape" of information dissemination and collecting in particular fields, and reference selected online resources available through CRL.

Member libraries are encouraged to reference CRL collection strengths in local subject guides. Options include:

- Linking to CRL topic guides, or to specific titles or archival sets cited in the guides
- Linking to a defined search tab within the CRL catalog, such as "Newspapers" or "Dissertations"
- Consulting with CRL to create customized scripts to search the CRL catalog for particular topics

Sample boilerplate language is available for referencing CRL collections.

Center for Research Libraries (CRL)

What is the Center for Research Libraries?

The Center for Research Libraries (CRL) is a centralized collection of scholarly research materials in all disciplines. CRL is an international not-for-profit consortium of colleges, universities and libraries that makes available scholarly research resources to users everywhere. CRL is governed by the major research libraries of North America and is funded by fees, grants and contributions. Its outstanding collections include more than 3.5 million volumes of research materials rarely held in North American libraries. CRL offers large collections of foreign dissertations, newspapers, and microfilm sets. Because the University Libraries have membership in CRL, University of Arkansas students, faculty, and staff may borrow these collections through Interlibrary Loan.

What is the Center for Research Libraries (CRL)?

The University of San Diego is a member of the Center for Research Libraries — an international consortium of university, college, and independent research libraries. CRL acquires and preserves newspapers, periodicals, and other primary source materials from a global network of sources, making them available to researchers through print and digital delivery. USD faculty, staff and students are encouraged to use CRL.

What is available through CRL?

CRL’s deep and diverse holdings support research in the history of science, economics, law and government, immigration and population studies, international diplomacy, and cultural studies. Find this material by searching the CRL catalog.

- Largest collection of circulating newspapers in North America (over 16,000 titles with strengths in various global areas and historical U.S. ethnic titles)

The Linda Hall Library is the world’s foremost independent research library devoted to science, engineering, and technology. CRL and the Linda Hall Library of Science entered into a strategic partnership in 2012 to preserve and develop historical research collections in the fields of science, technology and engineering.

The collections covered by the partnership include current and back issues of over 50,000 journal titles acquired and maintained by CRL and Linda Hall over the years. These include print serials from Elsevier, Wiley, Springer, and other publishers; historical serials published by the Russian Academy of Sciences and other learned societies in Europe, Asia, and the U.S.; foreign serials in the fields of Physics, Chemistry, and Engineering received through the Library of Congress Cooperative Acquisitional Program; engineering specifications, technical reports, standards and other publications of U.S. and foreign government agencies; and other retrospective serials held by CRL and Linda Hall.

Linda Hall Library includes the print library collection of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, acquired in 1946, part of the library of the Franklin Institute, acquired in 1985, and the Engineering Societies Library (ESL), from a 1995 transfer.

The combined CRL and Linda Hall STE print serials are available electronically to CRL libraries through on-demand digitization and traditional document delivery.

I found a Linda Hall Resource that I need. Now what do I do?

The USD membership with CRL allows us to request material from the Linda Hall Library free-of-charge through CRL. You can email bibliographic information to us and then contact your Copley Library subject liaison to help you request the material through CRL.
